

The purpose of implementing a responsive layout in a project is to design and structure the user interface in a way that adapts seamlessly to different screen sizes and devices, providing an optimal viewing experience for users.

